Neebin (Summer)	Identify the challenges that Omakayas faces.	Explain how Omakayas responds to the challenges that she faces.	Other characters and Omakayas' interaction with them.	Summarize the chapter.	In what ways does Omakayas grow and gain strength in this chapter?
"The Birchbark House"			Angeline- Omakayas's sister "Angeline was so perfect that Omakayas despaired." Omakayas is jealous of her sister's beauty. Omakayas thinks her brother, Pinch, is greedy.	We are introduced to the main character and her family. Omakayas is 7 years old. She is playful and is a Native American.
"Old Tallow"	Old Tallow's dog threatens Omakayas's. Omakayas meets bear cubs in the forest on the way back from Old Tallow's home.	Omakayas looks at the dog and imagines that the dog speaks to her. She speaks to the bear cubs and the mother. Omakayas tells the mother bear that she would never hurt her cubs.	Old Tallow- older, powerful woman, not afraid of anything "She didn't scream at her, or heap disdain on her, order her away from her cabin or set her dogs on her." Omakayas wonders why Old	Omakayas goes to Old Tallow's house to get scissors. On the way back, she takes her time to avoid chores and to avoid seeing her sister, Angeline.

			Tallow treats her differently and offers that it may be because Old Tallow respects her mama and grandma.
“The Return”	Omakayas is left with the responsibility of watching her youngest brother, Neewo.	Omakayas lets Neewo out of the carrier, against her mother’s direction. She soothes the baby and puts him back in the carrier before her mother returns.	Nokomis, Omakayas’s grandmother, has the gift of speaking to animals and spirits. Deydey, Omakayas’s father, comes home. Omakayas holds Neewo, her baby brother. The author writes, “She felt, in her heart, streams of love for the baby pouring through and she begged her mother to let her take Neewo out and cart him to the lake on her hip. Omakayas was fond of Neewo.	Omakayas realizes that what happened with the bear was special and that she did actually communicate with the mother bear.	Omakayas takes responsibility for the first time in the text after her encounter with the bears. She completes her chores and watches her baby brother.

“Andeg”	Omakayas and her sister are tasked with the chore of keeping the crows off the crops. Omakayas and her sister have to clean and pluck the birds that they capture.	Omakayas and her sister use a net to trap the crows. Omakayas saves Andeg, a black crow, who becomes a part of the family.		Omakayas and her sister keep the harvest safe. Omakayas rescues a bird and it becomes her pet.	Omakayas is upset that Deydey’s gift to her was not a feminine gift like Angeline’s ribbon. Omakayas got a hide flesher. This shows that Omakayas wants to get grown up gifts, but she is still being treated like a young girl. Her parents see her differently than they see Angeline.

“Fishtail’s Pipe”			Omakayas and Angeline hide in the grass listening to Fishtail, LaPointe, and LaPautre discuss the white man wanting the Ojibwa people to leave the island and move west – again	“They are like greedy children. Nothing will ever please them for long.” The men of the village are clearly upset at the white man’s intrusion on land. Omakayas quietly listens to the conversation and learns much of the impact that the white man has had on her people.
“Pinch”	Omakayas goes into the forest with her mother to look for Andeg.	Omakayas acts mature about her lost bird and goes with her mother to look for the bird. While in the forest, she sees the bears and speaks to them in front of her frightened mother.	Omakayas allows her mother to see her interact with the bears. Up until this point, no one had seen her interact or speak to animals. Omakayas is still envious of her sister.
